Get More Involved with NGH

Now that NGH has been up and running for some time, we'll be holding our first Annual General Meeting (AGM) at the event on September 13th. This will be an opportunity to hear a short report about what's been achieved so far, to update the Constitution if necessary and, most importantly, to elect the members of the Steering Group.

Greener Berwick member Colin Elliot will be stepping down from the Steering Group at the AGM – and so we'd really like to thank Colin for his contributions over the last two years. NGH relies entirely on volunteers, and without wanting to be too dramatic – we need your help and support to continue. If you value NGH and want to see it continue, please do consider getting involved. It doesn't have to mean being part of the Steering Group – it could be helping with some of the work behind the scenes for an hour or two each month. It's a fantastic opportunity to be involved in a growing network and shape what comes next. If you've got energy, ideas, and want to get involved - we'd love to hear from you. Just get in touch at northumberlandgreenhub@gmail.com.

We'll be sending out more information about the AGM by email, but if you'd like to stand for election to the Steering Group, or find out more about ways of getting involved, email Northumberlandgreenhub@gmail.com and we can arrange a chat.

Join us - get inspired, get involved, and help grow a greener, fairer future.

FREE Digital Design Software

We still have some FREE Canva Pro licences available to NGH members. Canva is an easy to use, powerful digital graphic design tool, making it easy to design posters, presentations and social media content and is widely used for creating publicity materials.

NGH obtained 50 Canva Pro licences which usually cost £100/year per person. We still have some of these available for community groups which are part of the network.

If your group would like to take advantage of this offer, please email Northumberlandgreenhub@gmail.com with the name and email address of the person who will be the user(s).

We are exploring the possibility of providing specific training on using Canva, but this is likely to require an application for funding. We'll keep you posted.

2. Podcasting Opportunity

Podcasting Project Opportunity & Training Workshop

PODCAST

NGH Member, Lesley Long, is working on a climate and sustainability focused podcasting project with Dr Caroline Mitchell, Professor of Radio and Participation at the University of Sunderland. Caroline, who is an active member of Climate Action Newbiggin, has worked with a broad range of communities for many years on community radio and Lesley is a former communications trainer and Lionheart Community Radio presenter.

Podcast Training Workshop

Lesley and Caroline are developing a Podcast Training Workshop which will be available in the autumn of this year. The aim will be to provide knowledge and skills training for absolute beginners about the process of creating and publishing a podcast, including the skills of interviewing and creating subject content. Watch this space for more information in the next edition of the Digest.

We'd Love You to Get Involved?

The Project is looking for contributors, interviewers, and anyone who might like to get involved in podcast production or in creating a podcast for their own community group. Podcast experience is not necessary, as you may well have transferable skills in research, public speaking, interviewing, marketing, organising events, etc. Training will be provided.

If you are curious and would like to register your interest, please contact Lesley by email through Northumberlandgreenhub@gmail.com. Put Podcast Project in the email subject heading.

3. Biodiversity & Wildlife

Pine Marten Sanctuary

Source: BBC News July 20th 2025

A sanctuary has been created at the National Trust's site at Wallington to help one of the UK rarest mammals, the pine marten. According to the Vincent Trust, there have been more than 60 sightings in the area in the last decade. The Trust have installed den boxes and improved woodland connectivity to help pine martens move into the estate and travel more easily through the wider landscape.

The haven is one of three being created nationally as part of a project called Martens on the Move, with the others being established in Dumfries and Galloway and in Monmouthshire.

New nature recovery project near Hadrian's Wall

The Hadrian's Wall Wetland Landscape Recovery project will restore and reconnect rare habitats, supporting species such as curlew, otters and osprey – while helping farmers adapt to climate change.

The project forms part of the Hadrian's Wall Recovering Nature initiative and stretches from Greenlee Lough to Bell Crag Flow, linking two National Nature Reserves and covering over 1,200 hectares of peatlands.

Step forward for Lynx

Source: BBC News August 7th 2025

A year-long consultation by The Missing Lynx project has found that Northumberland is the only place in England and Wales that has enough woodland to support lynx if they were released.

More than a 1,000 people completed a questionnaire and together with consultation events, there was strong support for their reintroduction.

Now the team is working with local people to discuss how a potential reintroduction could be managed.

The project, working in partnership with Northumberland Wildlife Trust took a group of farmers to Europe to visit two lynx projects where livestock live alongside the animals. It's thought that lynx could provide benefits including controlling deer, managing woodland ecosystems and developing ecotourism.

4. Rivers, Sea & Coast

Success of community-led water testing project

Congratulations to Coquet River Action Group who were highlighted by the Community Foundation for their work helping to build a better picture of the health of the River Coquet.

In 2024 the group was awarded funding by Community Foundation North East through the Local Environmental Action and Lawrence Campbell Community First funds.

Subsequently testing has expanded with monitoring taking place from Barrowburn to the coast, alongside work with the Environment Agency to investigate nitrate levels in the Warkworth area.

5. Updates from Groups

The Growth of the Greener Amble Network

NGH member Sue Rzepczynski tells the story behind the Greener Amble Network –

Last summer I began work on something I had been mulling over for a while. It was that, despite the initiatives starting to grow all over Northumberland supporting environmental and climate change, there seemed to be nothing in Amble. Indeed, joining NGH in the first place had been because I wanted to raise local issues. I thought that there must be people who shared my concerns.

I contacted an Amble resident from NGH who has worked on green and sustainability matters locally and NWT's new Communities' Officer Tash Hemsley. This led to a meeting last September at Coquet Shorebase Trust. The Greener Amble story had begun.

I was keen to explore what was already happening in the Amble area and how a group might help. I believed strongly that the group should develop its own direction and purpose. We were fortunate to have support from CRAG, Amble Women's Workshop and Dry Water Arts. NWT's Nextdoor Nature Project has also supported us practically and financially this year which has been a great help.

Initially developing the group was quite challenging, with an expectation that it would have a formal structure already. I found this, and the expectation from some that I should have all the answers quite daunting. But nearly a year on, Greener Amble has really started to take shape. We have made contact with over forty people and attendance at our meetings has risen steadily. We have worked on our priorities and values, had talks from members on their work and visited Amble Women's Workshop

What has become evident is that one of the group's main roles is providing opportunities to share information, raising awareness of local issues and signposting volunteer opportunities.

This is why I have suggested our name should be the Greener Amble Network - a place for communication, sharing and support for the Amble community working to improve its environment. As a group we will also be organising some of our own initiatives.

We are holding a Greener Amble Fair on 18th October and the next stage is to set up a steering group, establish a mailing list/newsletter and explore funding options. Lots to do but it's encouraging to see a group that's delivering benefits not only to its members but also the Amble environment and community.

Alnwick Area
Friends of the Earth

Alnwick Area Friends of the Earth

At the Alnwick Area Friends of the Earth meeting on 6th August, discussions included the group's contributions to Friends of the Earth's 'Big Climate Plan' and 'Right to a Healthy Environment' campaigns as well as ongoing campaigns on divestment and the burning of biomass at Lynemouth power station.

Terry Smith was congratulated for the Earthmovers Award that he had received at the recent Friends of the Earth NE Groups Summer Gathering. This award recognised his boundless enthusiasm for climate action, and particularly for creating and distributing his Tipping Point Challenge game, which promotes discussion about environmental challenges as well as the positive actions we can take to mitigate environmental damage.

The Tipping Point game can be purchased for £20, just £1 more than the production cost, with all the sale proceeds going to making more games. If you are interested in seeing the game or purchasing one, please contact Terry Smith by email either - tezzalamezz@hotmail.com or contact@alnwickfoe.org.uk

The next committee meeting of Alnwick Area Friends of the Earth will be at 7pm on Wednesday 3rd September in Alnwick Youth Hostel.

6. The Green Table

11. NCC – Climate Champions Network

Following a meeting with Climate Champions in July, NCC have made a decision about the future of the Climate Champions Network – this is an extract from an email from the Climate Change Team -

After discussion and deliberation on feedback received over the past few months, the climate team have decided to disband the Climate Champions Network. The climate team have led the Network for over 5 years, and know that there have been multiple changes, focus has shifted and there are now a number of additional support networks for environmental groups being offered.

The team are aware that the Network hasn't been running as originally intended, and there has been confusion around the direction of the project. It has been raised that there are some uncertainties as to what the benefits of being a Climate Champion are, and there has been a drop in attendance at meetings.

There are lots of opportunities for support, to share best practices and challenges, and to network with others in the climate space, which allow champions to continue taking action and accessing support.

Thank you for your commitment and dedication to the Climate Champions Programme over the past years. We know that some of you have been involved since its inception back in 2019, and we want to say thank you for all of your hard work, input, dedication and time spent engaging with us.

We know you are all working on some fantastic climate and environmental projects and we hope you continue to champion environmental action across the County.

Going forwards, the team will be reviewing how to best support community action across the County, including providing Carbon Literacy Training to community leaders, helping to build capacity through the NE and Yorkshire Net Zero Hub, providing public engagement events and promoting community action through the website and comms.
